Important Collegeboard Updates for all AP students:

In order for students to register to take AP exams in Spring of 2020, CollegeBoard is requiring students to register an account on their website. Students will be using the same log in information they currently use to register for PSAT, SAT, or to access their AP scores. Once logged on, teachers will give them an access code to "Join" their course. By doing so, students can register for the exam and also will have access to CollegeBoard provided resources. Students will need to provide some information when they enroll in an AP course on CollegeBoard's website including the school they attend and they're current grade level. Through this new system, teachers will have access to a test question bank and the ability to monitor student understanding through online assignments.

More information will be sent out in mid-September with specific registration deadlines, fees, and class join codes.
